CMU Raasta is Carnegie Mellon University's premiere raas-garba competitive dance team, and has promoted Indian culture across campus and across the country for the last eight years. This year's piece so far is the result of many risks taken and learnings made during a completely novel hybrid experience. Thank you to our executive board for continuing our team's legacy, and thank you to our newbies for committing themselves so wholly to our family. Please welcome our new dancers in their first raas performance!

Back in 2007, rather than not going out because of a virus, we couldn't go out because our parents didn't let us. We spent endless hours watching childhood movies like Totoro and playing nostalgic games like Tetris or Pokémon on the Gameboy. Now that we are responsible citizens who stays inside all day, we would like to bring you back to our good old days, when life was so much simpler.

And they were ROOMMATES! Here's to possibly the most perfect college-roommate-turned-best-friend pairing you've ever seen. We were already starting to become good friends before we started dancing together, but our dance experiences inevitably brought us closer and allowed us to create some of our favorite memories together. This piece is a tribute to all of our dance adventures, from dancing in the Morewood Multipurpose Room past midnight, to performing our DS pieces for each other in our room, to fosse-ing in SnS's production of Chicago, to years of Orientation dances.
